Denmark is an international pioneer in renewable energy and climate protection

In northern Denmark, the town of Frederikshavn is the center of Recycling City. We are determined to develop opportunities based on a circular economic approach by strategically identifying businesses within recycling. We attract businesses and use the Recycling City umbrella to create strong industrial synergies. We are committed to seize today's opportunities and generate a strong and thriving business community.

Frederikshavn Municipality became Denmark's first Climate Municipality in 2007. The municipality's focus on energy optimizations attracts visitors from all over the world.
